The Natural Disaster Management Research Initiative (NDMRI) Seminar Series presents:

Lisa Caripis and Tim Baxter
Victorian Centre for Climate Change Adaptation Research (VCCCAR) and Melbourne Law School

Responsibility for climate change adaptation and preparedness for extreme events: A legal perspective on who does what and how

In this presentation researchers from Melbourne Law School, Tim Baxter and Lisa Caripis, consider the legal and governance arrangements relevant to adaptation and disaster risk management. Using examples, they look at how the way in which roles and responsibilities are defined affects the choice of legal and regulatory tools and how existing legal arrangements, in turn, can affect the allocation of roles and responsibilities.

When: Friday 21st June, 12pm
Where: Harold White Theatre, Level 2 (street level), 757 Swanston St, building 199 on the Parkville campus Enquiries: Gen Ford, gford@unimelb.edu.au

http://ndmri.research.unimelb.edu.au