Assess Now – Providing Tailored Feedback to Students

Professor David Shallcross
Director, Engineering Learning Unit
Melbourne School of Engineering
The University of Melbourne

“Assess Now” is an iPad app which allows tailored and individual feedback to be sent rapidly to students. Originally developed to deliver feedback on student oral presentation the app can be adapted to deliver feedback on a range of assessment tasks, such as clinical exams, when the assessment needs to be completed rapidly in real time. It has been successfully used across the University to deliver tailored feedback to over 2000 students.

David Shallcross is Director on the Engineering Learning Unit. David is active in chemical engineering education and has won several awards including the 2006 Frank Morton Medal, a 2007 Carrick Citation from the Carrick Institute, the 2010 Caltex Teaching Award of Excellence and the 2013 Institution of Chemical Engineers Council Medal. He is an accreditation assessor for both Engineers Australia and the Institution of Chemical Engineering and has accredited programs internationally. He is the former Editor-in-Chief of Education for Chemical Engineers published by Elsevier.
